Trees are important to our health and happiness. They give us peace, virtue, and happiness. These are a few reasons why trees are important.

First of all, trees give peace. The kind of peace that warms hearts. Trees are beautiful and everyone should admire them.

Second of all, trees have virtue and personality. A tree has character based on the way it appears to the human eye and everybody. A tree is described with traits like us. Such as healthy, young or old. Its part of character

Last of all, is happiness. A tree, any tree provides oxygen which makes everyone happy. Some people by just smelling a tree they are as happy as can be. Trees give off a certain type of relief.

In conclusions, this is why trees are important to our health and happiness.
